Shell Guide to Bird Sanctuaries: Slimbridge

There is nothing like Slimbridge anywhere else in the world. The Wildfowl Trust always shows 120 or more of the world's 146 species of swans, geese and ducks, most in conditions of only semi-captivity. But these 'exotics' are not the only stars; all year, and in winter particularly, thousands of wild birds visit this sanctuary on the Severn.

Peter Scott, the Trust's founder and honorary director, has painted the snow-covered meadows of the New Grounds, and beyond, the Severn Estuary and May Hill. The white flurry of the last few days has made the wild geese flight from the estuary to rougher fields with less snow. All but one are white-fronted geese from nesting grounds in Siberia-in-Europe, the arctic area of Russia. The exception (easy to spot) is a red-breasted goose—also from northern Russia. It appeared here last winter and was probably the 23rd example of its species seen in Britain. Below the geese, fly a pair of mallard (the duck, as is usual, in the lead); and on the Dumbles—beyond the hedged sea wall with its special observation hides for Trust members—a herd of rare Bewick's swans, whose numbers have increased here every year. The pictures by Eric Ennion show whitefront, shelduck, lesser whitefront.

Peter Scott and the Wildfowl Trust welcome visitors all year. Admission is 5/- (3/6 for children). Among the exotic collection in its beautiful waterfowl gardens, you can see about half the world population of the seriously rare néné or Hawaiian goose. The flocks of wintering geese can be seen from the observation hides in the grounds.

Turn NW at sign on main Gloucester (1½ miles) to Bristol (25m.) road, A38. In winter check catering, perhaps weather, at office (Cambridge, Glos. 333). Wear gumboots and windcheaters. Wildfowl Trust Shop, literature and souvenirs.

Some advice from Peter Scott: not all Britain's sanctuaries are open throughout the year. To avoid disappointment and help the sanctuary managers, please write ahead for permits, keep to trail regulations and read the COUNTRY CODE (6d. from H.M.S.O.).

Callas: "No" to riches

Plans to make a film of Maria Callas in Tosca have collapsed after an international imbroglio worthy of an opera in itself.

The story begins in 1958 when Franco Zeffirelli directed Callas in an enormously successful production of La Traviata in America. From that time on, Zeffirelli tried to persuade her to make a film with him. But Callas was reluctant to enter what was to her a new medium because she feared what she described as "technical manipulation."

In the theatre she can have her own way, overruling the director or the conductor. But she knew that in a film studio even the greatest stars have to obey orders.

She finally yielded to Zeffirelli's persuasion in February 1964 after another great success in Zeffirelli's production of Tosca at Covent Garden. Curtain-calls on that opening night went on for 40 minutes.

But one member of the audience was less than rapturous: Herbert von Karajan, the brilliant and temperamental Austrian conductor. In the Crush Bar of the Opera House he was overheard making critical remarks about the great diva's performance. Word was carried to her in her dressing-room. When Frau von Karajan, an old friend, called to congratulate her after the performance, Callas refused to receive her. The episode was to have terrific repercussions.

Plans for the film of Tosca went ahead after Callas had been assured that nothing would be done without her agreement. It was to be a filmed version of the Covent Garden production with Tito Gobbi as Scarpia.

The entire cast was flown to Paris to record the sound-track at the EMI studios there. This recording, conducted by Georges Prêtre, has since been released.

Meanwhile, Callas prepared herself for the role of film star in the most professional manner. She had long sessions with major film directors like William Wyler. She watched Audrey Hepburn and other stars at work.

Every day for several months she went to the cinema, sitting through each film twice because she felt that, on a second viewing, she could be more objective in her observation. She formed a friendship with Alberto di Rossi, perhaps the greatest make-up man in the business, and discussed with him the best way of presenting her own striking appearance on the screen.

Meanwhile, Zeffirelli had arranged for the film to be distributed through British Home Entertainments (a part-owner of Pay-TV run by Lord Brabham and including such British stars as Sir Laurence Olivier and Dame Margot Fonteyn on its board) and Warner Brothers in America. Both these organizations assured him that advance distribution would be so widespread that there was no reason to worry about production costs. Hovering paternally in the background, with the vast resources of his commercial empire at Zeffirelli's disposal, was Callas's friend, Aristotle Onassis.

Callas's contract entitled her to receive 500,000 dollars (150,000 payable on signing) and 50 per cent of the profit. It would have made her a very rich woman.

Zeffirelli had thought of everything – everything, that is, except to ensure that he obtained exclusive rights to film Tosca from Ricordi, the Milanese company which controls rights in all Puccini's work.

When Beta, the Munich film company, heard that Zeffirelli was planning to film Tosca, they swiftly moved in and secured the film rights for 150,000 dollars. They then approached him and suggested a joint production.

There was a snag. The artistic director of Beta is none other than Herbert von Karajan. And part of the deal was that he should have final control over the production. When Callas heard of this, she refused to have anything more to do with the project.

Onassis tried to rescue it. He offered to buy out Beta for 360,000 dollars, then raised his bid to 500,000 dollars. But Beta were not interested unless von Karajan was retained as supremo.

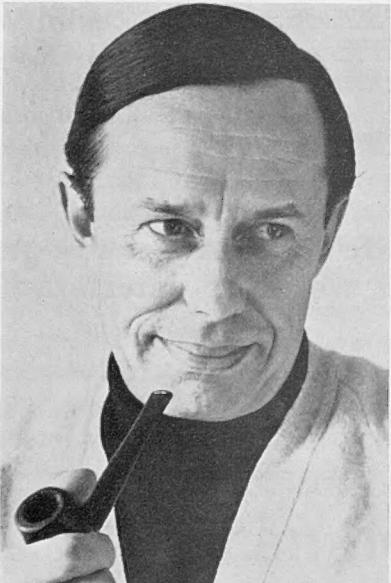

For the past three months, Zeffirelli has been trying to persuade both sides to reach an agreement. But he now seems to have accepted that Tosca will never be filmed with Callas.

"This," he says, "has been the saddest experience of my career. On all sides, there are people who claim they are the losers in this deal. I say that the big loser is the public which has been robbed of seeing the greatest operatic performance of our time."

Authorship at 30s a word

Frank Sinatra's film company has just paid £50,000 for the film rights of a book that won't even be published until 21 February next year. Not, as one might expect, a hitherto unknown Fleming, or the latest Le Carré, but a book called The Naked Runner by a former industrial correspondent who writes as Francis Clifford.

Mr Clifford's subject does

make the deal more explicable. The book, to be published by Hodder & Stoughton, is about an English businessman who is trapped into performing an assassination in Leipzig. The theme according to the author, real name Arthur Bell Thompson, is "the ability of one man, thanks to the latent killer instincts in all men, to manipulate another into assassination."

The film rights are not all American rights, both American and British serial rights, and other foreign rights are either sold or going soon. All told, Mr Thompson is likely to end up with around 30s a word for the 80,000 words of The Naked Runner. It is his twelfth novel, and the first to earn more than the rent, with the exception of An Act of Mercy, filmed with David Niven and Leslie Caron.

The book is written by a man who knows something of assassination: the author served during the war with Force 136, a secret unit in South East Asia which spent its time planning sudden death. The book is in no way autobiographical, but, says Mr Thompson, "all the world is full of deceit, guilt and treachery."

The gamblers' subsidy

Top-flight gamblers at the Curzon House, Mayfair may have wondered from time to time how so expensive and exclusive a club could be within the means of large numbers of genteel, but clearly not rich, ladies of mature years. After all, before one is allowed to lose the odd thousand at the club one must enlist several sponsors and pass a searching social and financial inquisition.

The answer is that the ladies are not so much rich cranks as fortunate heirs: for up until the club was taken over some three years ago, it had been a discreet London base for ladies of impeccable gentility but moderate means. The new management graciously allowed them to stay, even in fact to increase, so that if one wants an ideal present for the kind of lady who would relish her tea and cocktails heavily subsidized by gamblers on the occasions (Cruft's, WVS conferences?) she comes up to town, why not buy her a 10-guinea subscription to one of London's smartest gaming houses?

In action for Cinderella

With whoops and screams, a discreet shedding of woollies and a little panting, the Director of the Royal Ballet, Sir Frederick Ashton, and the Director of the Australian Ballet, Mr Robert Helpmann, go into action again after 17 years.

Subject is the ballet Cinderella which in 1948 was Ashton's first full-length work in traditional style. In those first performances he and the dancer Robert Helpmann created the roles of the ugly sisters. For this revival — which is, in fact, a new production with fresh sets and costumes — they have decided to offer the public the unexpected bonus of playing their original roles.

At the early rehearsals the main preoccupation was remembering the actual movements. Aiding were Michael Somes, Brian Shaw and Gerd Larsen — dancers who have all appeared in the ballet over the years. Mr Helpmann became increasingly delighted and enthusiastic as it all came flooding back. Sir Fred was a little more serious about it, trying to reconcile perhaps the dignities of being Director of the Royal Ballet with the decidedly skittish goings-on in his ballet.

"We did a Charleston here," cried Bobby joyously, and demonstrated, swinging his arms wide with a big boy-friend grin.

"No, we didn't," muttered Sir Fred gloomily.

"It's written in here — Charleston," pointed out Michael Somes, looking at the annotated score.

Sir Fred looked, authenticity won and the Charleston stays.

The mysterious Mr Pitt

In Hanover Square, 10 feet tall and cast in bronze, stands William Pitt.

A splendid statue which is regularly cleaned at the expense of the garden committee formed by residents of the square. It is not, however, their responsibility. Nor, apparently, that of the Greater London Council; nor of Westminster City Council; nor even of the Ministry of Public Building and Works.

In fact, William Pitt's presence in Hanover Square is a mystery. It has proved impossible to find who put him there, who paid for him, and who should nowadays be responsible for his wellbeing.

This does have certain advantages: since no-one can prove ownership, no-one can reasonably put Mr Pitt on their removal list – a practice to which all the public authorities listed resort from time to time, when a statue is in the way of development, or commemorates a personage now entirely forgotten.

A new newspaper takes shape

The News. That, with pertinent simplicity, is what the publishing gamble of the moment is to be called – due to arrive next May 2. The News is the long-discussed national Labour daily newspaper.

Hard-headed, first advertisements have been for an advertising manager: advertisements for an editor will follow next month. The paper will be the same size as The Times, and is aiming at a circulation of 300,000: its owners will be The Labour Press Cooperative Society, which had reached 1,300 shareholding members at the beginning of this month, and it will be printed by the Co-op Press, who print the Sunday Citizen.

Despite widespread pessimism in the Labour movement about the whole project, and a certain cynicism amongst newspapermen, the board of the society are themselves confident that the paper can succeed. Shareholders in Co-operative societies are limited to maximum holdings of £1,000 each, but it is thought that above and beyond the share-capital the paper has assurances of support from the Transport & General Workers' Union and other leading trade unions. Frank Cousins himself has long been an advocate of the scheme, and the Board includes unionists George Elvin, Hugh Jenkins and Jim Mortimer. Other members are Lady Megan Lloyd George, Tom Driberg, Norman Buchan, George Catling, Vera Brittain and Ernest Kay.

Mr Kay, the chairman, is a friend of the Prime Minister's, a Scilly Isles holidaymaker, and at present managing editor of Time & Tide.

Shortly after Christmas, advertising aimed at readers, rather than employees, will start. The agents for the launch campaign are Alexander-Butterfield, who also do Oxfam. Key slogan of the advertisements, to be run extensively in trade union journals and left-wing magazines, will be "A new newspaper of the Left is taking shape." Given the parlous history of left-wing publishing, The News will need more brilliant new talent than goodwill to survive. We wish it both.

Import Ltd are on the lookout for further subjects. One future issue that seems likely is of the Beatles. Not, this time, in common gold, but in platinum. Priced well beyond the most enthusiastic teenager, of course.

A success for Mr Luard

The latest publishing venture of Nicholas Luard, former emperor of satire, is apparently a great success. Called Design 65, it is a directory-cum-yearbook of the interior decorating world. Published last month in association with George Rainbird Ltd and Michael Joseph, every copy of the book has been taken up by the booksellers.

"For a five guineas a book, it's phenomenal," says Mr Luard. "We are all keen to do it even bigger and better next year." In the past, Mr Luard has made rather less impact on the booksellers. Scene magazine lost him a reputed £40,000 in six months, Movie magazine has only survived thanks to an anonymous, and rich, cineaste, and Mr Luard sold out his holding in Private Eye when the rest of his empire began to sag.

Bug-eyed monsters

Though the re-make of One Million Years BC—the first one started the career of Victor Mature in the demanding role of a caveman—the film will not be ready for release until this time next year. For after the live shooting, with Raquel Welch and John Richardson, is completed next month, the special effects men, under Ray Harryhausen, will move in for six months or more. It is up to them to splice in sufficient bug-eyed monsters and potential fates worse than caveman to enable Miss Welch to leap into the protective arms of Mr Richardson.

All the effects will be created at ABC Studios at Elstree, though some of those concerned will be imported from America, where monster-making is at a higher pitch of sophistication.

The Lords depart

The Prime Minister's respect for the Kennedy style, apparent in his choice of images to describe each crisis as he comes to it, was evinced when first elected not only by his talk of "the first 100 days" but by his import into government of whiz-kids from business, the universities and journalism. Whether the choices were unwise, the material less worthy, or the British system simply unsuitable, the idea has been less than a riot.

Lord Bowden, for example, resigned, in the words of one distinguished British scientist "just in time to save pure science from going down for the third time." Lord Bowden, a technology man, has returned to Manchester College of Technology. Left behind to exercise their fissiparous talents on science were Mr Cousins and Lord Snow: since only power could save either of them from the gale of carping anecdotes that have attended their careers, Lord Snow is hotly tipped to depart.

Press relations, Mr Wilson's personal speciality, have also attracted much criticism. Having appointed John Harris to the Foreign Office and Trevor Lloyd Hughes to the Cabinet Office as Press wizards, the Prime Minister has himself devoted great energy to fixing diplomatic, lobby, and political correspondents. With the coming of the Rhodesia crisis, he first chose to by-pass the Commonwealth specialists in favour of the arguably less-informed political correspondents, and has now abandoned them in favour of "working lunches" with their editors.

Meanwhile, Mr Harris and Mr Lloyd Hughes have attracted criticism from the Press, from their professional civil service colleagues, and from each other. To cap it, Mr Wilson has now appointed Mr Gerald Kaufman as Press Officer to the Parliamentary Labour Party—a House of Commons job—and given him an office in Downing Street. Journalists excluded from the Ministerial meals spend their time speculating on the future careers of Mr Harris and Mr Lloyd Hughes.

Big business on the range

Golf driving ranges, having been in some trouble when first started, are now big and booming business. Those at Croydon and Finchley are almost perpetually booked out, and that at Leatherhead has so proved that no amount of real golf course competition matters that another is to be built at Bournemouth. Yet another is to be built in what used to be the middle of Sandown racecourse, proving perhaps that the participant sports are really overtaking the spectator events. Not unexpectedly, golf club-makers are selling more drivers than putters.

To let: for £6,000 a year

When he died last year, property man Bernard Sunley left not only a £3,500 bequest to buy a Claridge's banquet for his colleagues, but a headache for the Sunley Investment Trust.

It was a penthouse on top of the postwar apartment block in the City—Amen Lodge, near St Paul's. Having taken over the project from the late Brendan Bracken, Sunley completed the block in 1961. Designed to appeal to companies in search of directors' accommodation, the block is lavishly appointed. Particularly the penthouse, subsequently advertised as "London's Most Luxurious".

There is an entrance hall-spacious reception room, glass-bowled fountain, Italian marble staircase. Three bedrooms, one of them already equipped with honey-coloured fur counterpane. One room has walls lined in dark green silk. Two small roof garcons and a dining room. All it has lacked for the past four years is a tenant.

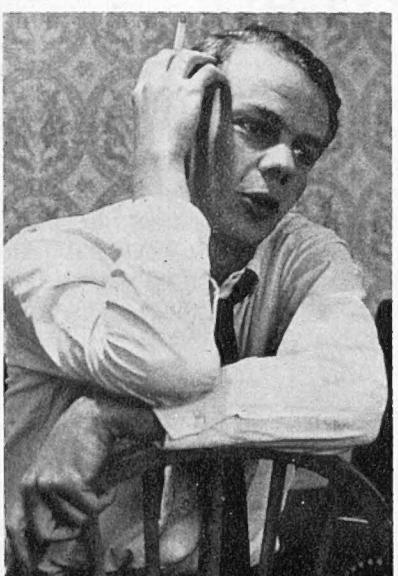

Sunley himself threw the occasional party there; nowadays, his son sometimes does the same. Having started at around £12,500 a year, the asking rent has now fallen to £6,000. Still no takers. If you ring CITY 6376 or 6346 you may get one of the lonely charladies who keep the dust off the moulded wall ornament specially sculpted by William Mitchell.

An appetite for art

With typically American flair, a postgraduate student at London University has just begun a revolution in the sale of art to students. Still in his twenties, Eugene Schuster already owned galleries in Detroit, Washington and Chicago before he came to London this year to work on a doctorate in the history of art. He has just completed a "pilot run" of a mobile gallery in Cambridge.

Hiring a large hotel room in the centre of the city, Schuster sold nearly 40 pictures in eight days. Prices ranged from two guineas (a small etching) to 200—a signed, numbered, Picasso lithograph. Nothing over 30 guineas actually

FRANK DICKENS • STRIPPER

"WHEN A CARTOONIST finds the simple format for a strip, he's on the way to making it." Frank Dickens speaks from experience. He spent years doing single cartoons and having them published. But success didn't occur till Bristow started running in the Evening Standard. It's been going for four years and has won him the Cartoonist of the Year Award ever since it started.

What motivates a Cartoonist? Dickens says money. Claims it has nothing to do with social conscience. Says he has no desire to preach, no urge to analyse.

Frank Dickens is the new Englishman. The man who wants to make money and does. But only doing what he enjoys doing. "One has to draw the line somewhere," he says "and drawing cartoons is fun." Frank says simplicity counts in Britain now. The straightforward idea. It shows up in everything. In films with their straightforward dialogue. In clothes. In pop tunes. It even shows up in drink. People order vodka now. Cossack Vodka. Because it's a clean drink. Cossack because it's straightforward and unpretentious. And Cossack because it mixes well with everything.

sold, but the total sales still ticked up to a satisfactory £300-worth.

As a result, Schuster is now planning similar shows at other university towns. First on the list will be Brighton, Warwick and Oxford. Schuster has already started negotiations for a less nomadic outlet in London.

The business idea is sound: using his expert knowledge and experience, Schuster buys either direct from the artist or through the dealers, in London or Paris. For spot cash, and what amounts to bulk buying, the prices are economic. He then sizes up a prospective university, picks a room, organizes publicity, and moves in a vanload of assorted prints. Prices are easily kept down to a competitive level, and the customers are offered a much wider selection than the average small gallery can afford to keep in stock. Schuster can always sell his leftovers at the next campus.

If the idea continues successful in this country, Schuster plans to introduce it when he gets back home to the US. "There are", he points out "more universities in the United States than art galleries. And a massive appetite for art."

Marion Boyars: a partner now

Her function: to wake people up

London's first woman publisher has arrived. After five years working for John Calder, Marion Boyars has been made a full partner in the firm. Since this year's Autumn List, Calder Books are Calder & Boyars Books.

One of the first titles to carry the new imprint, and one that Mrs Boyars claims full responsibility for, has caused a great stir. Called I, Jan Cremer it is described on the jacket as "raucous, bawdy, imaginative". W H Smith think it so much the second that they have refused to handle it.

Calder has always been known for the occasional controversy. Other house authors are William Burroughs (The Naked Lunch) and Henry Miller (the Tropics and much else that first saw print in Paris, for fairly obvious reasons). John Calder himself was associated with the notorious nude at the Edinburgh Festival.

Mrs Boyars clearly shares her partner's sympathy for radical literary and political causes. "Violence and cruelty", she believes "must be made public. To wake people up is part of my function as a publisher."

Hockey with hot pipes

Visiting teams invited to play hockey against the nuclear scientists of Aldermaston have been commenting favourably on the facilities available. Large, hot baths, excellent hospitality. Most particularly, however, have they praised the lush, springy turf of the pitch. No amount of snow or frost seems to affect the playing area.

Finally, a visiting skipper inquired just how, when all around was jagged mud, such a pitch could be provided. "Easy, old boy," he was told. "We've got so much spare heat around here we've run hot pipes under the grass."

Glamour comes from Poland

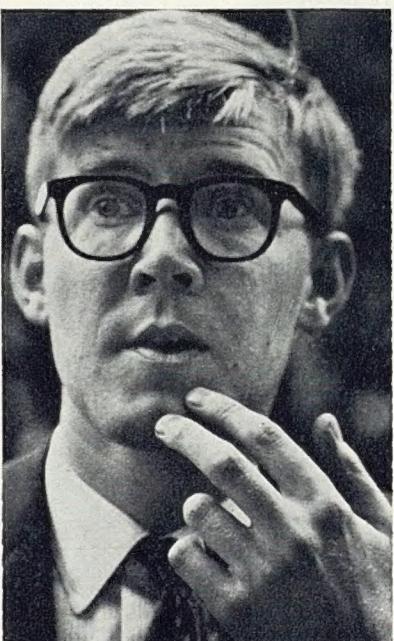

The Richmond Herald at the College of Arms, Mr Robin Mirrlees, has decided to award two further scholarships for Polish girls to attend exclusive, and expensive, Padworth College, a girls' finishing school near Reading. Mr Mirrlees gave two earlier scholarships for last summer term, when the results were so satisfactory for girls, classmates, staff and, presumably, Mr Mirrlees, that he decided to repeat the gesture.

The girls apart, the biggest beneficiary seems to be tutor Richard Herbert, 27, who was asked to spend an autumn holiday with the first two girls and their parents in Poland this autumn. He is off to see them again at Christmas. The school rector, Mr Peter Fison, says that the Polish girls, Ewa Bielenia and Edwarda Nussbaum-Zawadecka, "wore the briefest bikinis and the most glamorous evening dresses in the school."

His hobby: peace and quiet

Nearly two years ago, the four stars of Beyond the Fringe agreed in principle to make a movie for Sam Spiegel. Since then, things have moved at a very slow pace. Peter Cook and Jonathan Miller finally produced a script a few months ago which met with qualified enthusiasm not only from Mr Spiegel but from its authors and their colleagues, Dudley Moore and Alan Bennett. Both Mr Cook and Dr Miller are very busy men, so there is no great likelihood that events will accelerate from now on.

Alan Bennett: just sitting

Meanwhile, Alan Bennett, always the quietest member of the quartet, is living in effective retirement in Hampstead. "All I do now" he says "is what I want. In fact, for the next few weeks I shall just sit here in my flat." Alan occasionally writes and performs a number for BBC-3, but otherwise he is content to sit and think, and look forward with mild enthusiasm to the movie. Unlike Cook, he never dabbled in extraneous businesses; unlike Miller, he has no family, and unlike Dudley Moore, no expensive hobbies. Just peace and quiet.

A wake for The Lawyer

After seven distinguished, if occasionally controversial, years publication, it seems that the current issue of The Lawyer is to be the last. Started in 1958 as a bi-annual by Jonathan Stone, the magazine has published thrice yearly since 1960. Amongst other things, it has published Felix Topolski's Legal London and run a regular section for the members of Justice, the lawyer's society which has been in the forefront of the movement for legal reform at home and the revelation of inequity abroad.

The reasons for its downfall, according to sole proprietor and editor Stone, are threefold: a static, veering to falling, circulation of 4,000, which was on the borderline of breaking even and losing money; an increasing coverage of the fringes of the law, law reform, law and the arts, in the serious general Press, and the Finance Act, 1965. This last has affected Mr Stone personally, rather than the magazine, but he explains: "Though I was happy to work for nothing and break even, I can't afford to find both time and money."

The magazine's passing was marked by a wake attended by many lawyers: at it, expressions of regret came from subscribers and contributors, including Lord Shawcross, the chairman of Justice.

Take with saki, please

Oysters this year are running at around 35s a dozen. Too much for most, and even if bought for home consumption, involving a nasty struggle with the breadknife before one can enjoy the fleeting gulp. However, one Billingsgate firm has recently marketed an oyster which is both cheap (between four and nine shillings a dozen retail) and ready de-shelled. Deep-frozen, packed in plastic trays like palettes, they come from Hiroshima. That's right, Hiroshima.

This year create a mild sensation — give him Doncella cigars. He may be mobbed by admiring senoritas (drawn to the mild Havana aroma like moths to the flame). But he probably won't mind.

How I feel now about Twang!!

by
Lionel Bart

On Monday 20 December, between 7.30 and 11 pm, I will be going through some of the most crucial hours of my life. I refer, of course, to the opening of my new musical Twang!!, which seems to have caused a certain amount of controversy in the course of its growing pains.

People who have not seen it have been hastily preparing its obituary – and even doormen and taxi-drivers and strangers in the street have been handing me verbal wreaths, saying “Sorry about Twang!!, mate”. Well, maybe we shall have a surprise or two for them on Monday night. I certainly hope so, for the show we will be presenting then is going to be a very different offering to one that had such a painful birth a few weeks ago in Manchester.

Twang!! is an attempt to do a satirical parody of the Robin Hood story. It’s intended as a spoof, a send-up, a bit of fun at the expense of the basic premise, take it or leave it, “that we’re every one of us living a legend.” It’s intended to be a fun-show with masses of gay songs and pretty girls, and in the story we show how all these well-known characters of time-honoured legend are proved to be not entirely what they’ve been cracked up to be.

I hadn’t done more than two of the songs and a very rough rundown of the story when Joan Littlewood phoned and told me she would like to direct Twang!! I was delighted at the prospect, and also thought that working in a group would spare me the stress and strain of having to have my finger on every button all the time as with Blitz!

Unhappily, it didn’t turn out such a good idea after all. It was a mistake on my part to think we could recapture the sort of impromptu development in a big-scale musical as we had done in Fings. Joan is essentially a one-woman band. Twang!! is essentially a combination of many separate talents.

We plunged in, however, at the deep end. Several attempts were made to prepare a script, none of which really allowed for the ensemble commedia dell’ arte which has always been Joan Littlewood’s forte. After a number of readings at my home with some of the leading actors endeavouring to create such a growth, we found ourselves in preliminary rehearsals without a script worth speaking of. I’d done the songs, but rehearsals were carried out in such a way that I would be working on the songs in one room while actors were working on their scenes in another. We literally all came together for the first time only on the opening night in Manchester. I nearly went out of my mind. Scenes were being played that had nothing to do with the songs, and songs were being sung that had nothing to do with the scenes. Naturally, the local Press hurled brickbats galore. I was to blame for setting up the show in this way in the first place. There was much wailing and lamentation and the following day Joan Littlewood left us, feeling it was impossible for her to continue.

There are no rules for writing a musical. I’ve done several and the approach has always been different. I started writing my first more or less as a hobby. This was Oliver!, which I thought of in a vague way as a vehicle for Tommy Steele; but as it developed I fell in love with the subject, though I felt Dickens’ characterization was too black and white.

At first I couldn’t see how I would ever manage to get round the problem of Fagin. But the story fascinated me and I knew there was scope for a musical dramatization. It contained at least four characters – Oliver, Fagin, Nancy and Bill Sykes – who are immediately identifiable on an international scale in the theatre, and once I had gained an insight into the central characters, I found I had achieved the necessary artistic breakthrough. Then I showed drafts to various managements – but nobody wanted to know. They thought the subject was too morbid.

While I was still working on this theme I was offered a chance to do my first real musical. Oscar Loewenstein, the producer, introduced me to Joan Littlewood, who was then running her Theatre Workshop at the Theatre Royal, Stratford East. She told me she had the bones of a play by an ex-convict called Frank Norman. It was actually about 20 pages of cameos under the then title of Fings Ain’t Like They Used T’Be. Joan Littlewood said we had exactly two and a-half weeks in which to mount this piece as a musical play – including writing and rehearsals! – and would I do the songs?

Who could resist such a challenge? I took time off from various profitable composing chores and set myself up more or less permanently in the stalls of Theatre Workshop. I’d watch the actors improvising from Frank Norman’s dialogue then someone would drag me up on to the stage to help a character to grow into a situation till it obviously became a cue for a song. Then I would dash off to the theatre bar and write the music and lyric and try it out on an old piano. I would then rush back on to the stage and we’d teach the new number to the actors involved and place it into the “book” that very day.

Fings Ain’t Wot They Used T’Be was probably the most fun creation I’ve ever been involved in for the theatre, and a year later it was revised and mounted for what became a two-year run in the West End.

During the year that followed Fings I still couldn’t get anyone interested in Oliver!, but I was commissioned to do the lyrics for Lock Up Your Daughters, which opened up the Mermaid Theatre. Again, this show had to be put together in a short period, but there was a completely harmonious collaboration between Bernard Miles, adaptor of the book, Laurie Johnson, the composer, and myself. I always think the tunes along with the words, and during my work on Lock Up Your Daughters I did dummy tunes along with all the lyrics – tunes that I never let Laurie Johnson hear. I have since learnt that this is the way Rodgers and Hammerstein worked. During 1963 I had many meetings with Richard Rodgers in New York and London when we were envisaging working on a property together. Rodgers was amazed when I told him how I had worked with Joan Littlewood in Fings, just allowing lyrics to grow out of actors' improvisations. He told me how Oscar Hammerstein used to present him with lyrics that were practically engraved in stone, and he simply had to fit tunes to them.

Altogether, Oliver! went through about a dozen different management before we found a backer. It has since become the longest-running musical show in the history of the London theatre. It owes its longevity, I think, to the fact that it doesn't depend too heavily on any one of its various elements. It's difficult to say which character, if any, is the star. The sets, costumes, lighting all have an extremely well-integrated flow. It's largely a "mood piece" – when you tour that show you have to be absolutely certain that the lighting is bang on for every cue. Faulty cueing could destroy the entire mood of the show.

Every show I do is first conceived as a one-page breakdown before I tackle the writing. Both Blitz! and Maggie May were conceived in this way and then I had long sessions with Sean Kenny in which we both concentrated solely on the visual aspects of the shows. I'd been nursing some of the musical themes of Blitz! for over 10 years, perhaps more, since the show is based almost entirely on my own childhood experiences in London during the blitz. The central character was, in fact, my mother.

In Blitz!, we tried to convey the peculiar spirit which existed during the war when every minority group was brought together simply because bombs were falling on all of them. It was a massive project and I made the mistake of directing it myself. Blitz! had 65 actors, 35 musicians, and a massive radio-controlled set which nearly drove us all mad by refusing to move during the first week of the tour. This, combined with the thousand light cues, sound effects, smoke effects, and electronic gadgets, all under my personal control, managed to give me my first – and I hope my last – ulcer.

It was not until I got round to Maggie May that I found myself collaborating for the first time with an experienced craftsman and playwright. Alun Owen and I kicked off with the basic idea of doing a contemporary story analogous to the story of Mary Magdalene and Christ. The fact that Liverpool was Owen's home town made it easier for us to place our story in the Liverpool docks in which we set our action between an idealistic trade union leader and the prostitute famed in the Liverpool folk song "Maggie May."

We spent a year and a half getting it ready. Whenever we found in our wanderings and discussions a situation in our story which was a natural cue for a song I would go off to my room and set to work. In many cases Alun Owen would provide me with pages of chat and content-matter which I'd develop into a song. I found that the Liverpool-Irish speech and music rhythms fell naturally on my ears and so, in time, I completed my first musical set outside my Cockney-Jewish London origins.

About two years ago I decided I wanted to do a musical about the Hunchback of Notre Dame. I thought it would be interesting to pose the question, What is ugly? And in Quasimodo there was another character, like Oliver, who would be immediately identifiable to a theatre audience. Plans were well advanced for getting this into production when I sold the idea of Twang!! on the basis of a half-page of typed synopsis. So I had to put Quasimodo temporarily on the shelf, but I'll get back to him as soon as Twang!! is on – or off, as the case may be.

But what to do with Twang!!? There was so much good material in the show that it would have been terrible to abandon it. The only thing to do was to go on fighting for its life until we got it right for the London opening. At this stage Oliver Messel suggested we should call in the services of Burt Shevelov, the American author of A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum, and so Shevelov was appointed by the management to come in with me as script co-ordinator and director.

Burt happily liked the whole idea of Twang!! as a send-up of the Robin Hood legend, and he and I got together to reshape the show and make the songs belong to the scenes and the scenes belong to the songs. But when we ended in Manchester we were still playing Joan Littlewood's second act along with a brand-new first act.

There were at least a couple of dramas every day. The principals went off with laryngitis. Then Bernard Delfont, the show's backer, decided to withdraw his association from the London opening.

Meanwhile, everyone carried on with the strenuous work of virtually recreating the show. For example, during two weeks of intensive rehearsal at the Shaftesbury Theatre we wrote the new second act and introduced three new songs. Altogether I have written something like 35 songs for Twang!!, 18 of which remain in the show. My collaboration with Shevelov has been frequently carried on into the small hours, mostly by telephone.

Each morning we meet in the theatre for half-an-hour's discussion and exchange of notes before the first run-through. Since the Manchester opening Shevelov has sharpened up the plot and established an harmonious relationship between the songs and the scenes. Against fierce opposition from many quarters, we are, in fact, opening as planned at the Shaftesbury Theatre on 20 December. And on that night we would all like to be judged, not by what has passed, but what we shall be offering, there and then, as a brand new musical show.

walnut facia. It comes in the Victor 101 de Luxe

For that millionaire feeling you won't do better. This beautiful new facia is shaped from the finest burr walnut. A touch of opulence that sets the whole tone of the Victor 101 de Luxe, inside and out. The individual front seats, for instance, in soft Ambla or traditional leather are so perfectly comfortable that even after the longest journey you will feel rested. Other Victor luxuries are very well known, such as the lavish cut-pile carpeting, sound-proofing to keep road noise out, and a heater that warms the rear as effectively as the front. Such comfort, you'd rather not get out at all. And consider the spaciousness of the interior. The curved design allows a marvellous extra four inches shoulder room. A real car with a 23 cu. ft. boot to take all the luggage.

Performance, too, will please the most exacting motorist. The world-proved Victor engine lets you cruise effortlessly in comfort at 70-80 m.p.h. Powerful brakes match the performance. The choice of gears includes three- or four-speed all-synchro, or if you'd rather let the car do all the work, Powerglide automatic transmission, the smoothest in the world. Magic Mirror acrylic lacquer keeps the showroom finish for years without polishing. Factory-applied underbody seal protects right through the year.

Feel like a millionaire, today! Arrange with your Vauxhall dealer to see and test drive the fabulous Victor 101 de Luxe.

TAXI!

There are 7,669 cabs
on the streets,
but it's difficult

says Llew Gardner

Drivers—1. Willie Rose, grand old man of the cab trade. His sons have followed him behind the wheel

Perhaps, as you have stood in the pouring rain outside Selfridges at 5.30 in the evening, arms flapping wildly at every passing vehicle, the thought has crossed your mind that even taking the rush hour into account there actually appear to be fewer taxis on the road than at other times of the day. Doubtless you have also rejected this notion as the product of a mind slightly deranged by being so long parted from its supply of drinking chocolate.

Yet there is a very simple and rational explanation for such an impression: there ARE fewer taxis at that time.

Between five and six is the time when many journeymen drivers change shifts. It is also the time when a lot of owner drivers begin to think about heading for home.

From time to time efforts have been made to alter this state of affairs: to switch the changeover time to seven or some other hour

Drivers—2. Ex-Guardsman Phil Diamond claims to be Makarios's double which would not clash with the busiest period of the day. They have foundered upon the irreconcilable interests of the day men and the night men. Both want their share of the rush-hour trade.

Taxi drivers are great grumbler. Yet there has been a steady increase since the war in the number of cabs on the London streets. In 1954 there were 5,553. Today there are 7,669. This figure is, however, less than the immedi-

GLOSSARY

Butterboy: A newly qualified driver

Copperbottom: A driver who never stops for a break. Also called a "Primus" suggesting he does his cooking in the back of the cab

Cock and hen: A man and a woman

Dickory: The meter

Dead legal: A passenger who doesn't tip

Freight: Luggage

Good rider: A passenger who gives a fair tip

Highway patrol: The drivers who work London Airport

The In and Out: Piccadilly

Journeyman: A driver who works for a firm

Mush: An owner driver (because he drives his own sled)

Old Bill: Someone who gives an exceptionally generous tip

Pin: A single passenger

The Rag: The Army and Navy Club

The Rat Hole: Waterloo Station

Stalker: A driver who has forgotten to put his flag down to start the meter (only rarely done on purpose)

Stumer: A false phone call

To trap a job: To pick up a fare while cruising

"The worst tippers? Straight up: Spades, those Hindus with red spots on their foreheads and Australians... The best? Jews, prostitutes and the racing fraternity . . ."

"I'll tell you about Australians. There was this girl who came up to me in the rank and asked if I knew the address of a certain office. Well, it took me about ten minutes to locate it, during which time I lost a fare. Then she asked me to take her there. It was only just around the corner and when we arrived there was just 1s 3d on the clock. I switched the meter off as she got out but she asked me to wait while she checked if it was the right place. She was away 15 minutes. When she came back she wrote out a cheque for 1s 3d on the Bank of Australia. I've still got it at home. Bleeding Australians . . ."

"You see the trouble with Australate pre-war total of 7,811 (in 1938 there were also 12 horse-drawn cabs).

The number of owner-drivers has also been increasing. There are now 3,399 cabs whose owners have only one or two vehicles.

"Why did I become a taxi driver? Well someone told me there were a lot of Jews in the business and I reckoned if that was so there must be money in it. Now I reckon it's the only mistake they ever made . . ."

"The good part of the job is meeting people. I've met them all: rich and poor. I took an MP to the House of Commons last week. He paid me with four shillings worth of stamps. You're more than just a driver in this job. You become a sort of psychologist. After a bit you begin to know more about people than they know themselves . . ."

"The money is dreadful but I wouldn't do anything else. I like the open air life. I like meeting people. I tell you straight people are okay just so long as you can talk to them."

A journeyman, who gives 60% of each fare to his employer, is unlikely to earn much more than £16 or £17 a week with tips. After meeting his expenses an owner-driver will hope to clear about £20.

"I tell you, and it's a dreadful thing to have to say in the 20th century, but if it wasn't for the tips there wouldn't be any cabs . . ."

"The worst tippers? Straight up: Spades, those Hindus with red spots on their foreheads and Australians... The best? Jews, prostitutes and the racing fraternity . . ."

"A fair tip? About ten per cent. But what's the good of giving a bloke 6d. It's like a penny before the war . . ."

The shape of the modern cab is dictated by regulations devised for horse drawn vehicles in the 19th century. Some think it is time the design was modernised. Three years ago a Home Office committee agreed that there was little room for improvement. A taxi's turning circle is 25 ft. A modern taxi costs £1,200 and at the end of ten years its owner will be lucky if he gets £100 for it. Maintenance comes to about £250 a year. Insurance varies from £50 to £90.

"This week I started off well. I made £6 on Monday. An exceptional day. On the way home I thought I could hear a bit of a knock, so Tuesday morning I took the cab into the garage. I picked it up Wednesday midday. They had fitted a new gearbox. Bill: £56. I had a fair afternoon and picked up four quid. Yesterday I made a fiver. Today looks a bit quiet but I suppose with luck I'll do £4. I'll have to work all weekend and even then I'll still be out of pocket . . ."

The best time of the year for taxi-drivers is the summer when London is full of tourists. Then, in addition to tips, drivers can pick up an extra fiver or so as backhanders from night clubs.

"Some people moan about the Americans, but I reckon they are okay. They've got this little book which tells them how much to tip and so on. The trouble is that some of them have books two or three years out of date so you end up having an argument . . ."

"I'll tell you something: when taxis were first introduced 200 years ago the fare was 1s a mile. Now it's 1s 8d. That's not much of an increase is it? You can check what I'm saying in the encyclopedia." [I did in both Chambers and the Britannica and found no such reference. But the present rate of 1s 8d compares not unfavourably with the pre-war fare of about 9d a mile. Taxi fares have gone up less than other public transport.]

"Of course it's unfortunate that the first impression some tourists get of London taxi-drivers is the pirates at London Airport. But we aren't all like that. And the Americans know it. We have a system of exchange holidays with New York cabbies and they tell us they have their villains too . . ."

"Mind you there are some real villains around. Take a chap like Claud the Bastard. Four-thirty in the morning, he'll arrive at Paddington Station just as a night train is due in. He'll race past the rank, turn on to the platform, pick up the first fare off the train and belt off before anyone can raise a finger . . ."

Where they meet—the drivers' shelter in Temple Place

No one knows London better than a taxi driver. In the old days they used to walk or cycle every street in the metropolis in preparation for their qualifying examination. Now they do it by moped. But there has been no relaxation in the standard required to pass. Few get through without at least a year's preparation. Nothing annoys a driver more (short of a dead legal) than a passenger who claims to know the route better than he does.

"I had this bleeding taff wh' kept saying 'Take the next right'. I knew the next right was a cul-de-sac but I took it in any case. I drove right up to the wall at the end and then I said 'Where to now, mister?' He shut up after that . . ."

"I cycled 12,000 miles all over London to get my licence and still I get people who think they know the way better than I do . . ."

"Of course there are blind spots but most cabbies will get you where you want to go by the shortest route in the shortest possible time. All this business about going the long way round is nonsense. All the average cabbie wants to do is pick up his passenger, take him where he wants to go and get another fare as quickly as possible. Start playing around and you end up losing money . . ."

Owner drivers are not fussy about the length of the journey they do. Journeymen prefer short runs. The tips are likely to be greater.

Finally advice to potential passengers standing in the rain in the West End: "Go to the nearest big hotel. Walk in one door and out of another and ask the commissionaire to get you a cab."

If you are very brave you don't even have to tip the commissionaire.

AND NOW, 40 YEARS LATER

Photograph by Akehurst

If the Mexican pottery photographed above looks mature and mellow, it's not surprising: it has just been brought into the open after 40 crated years. It left Mexico in 1925, and reaches the counters of a London store this month. The delay is not due, as one might at first suppose, to a lost van in the shunting yards or an absent-minded invoice clerk in Acapulco. The pottery was originally bought by a man who planned to open a Mexican shop over here. His plan fell through, and in 1928 the consignment was put into storage in Hampstead. It was discovered there this year by David Phillips, the china and glass buyer for Debenham & Freebody and Woollards. He was so impressed by the quality of the pottery and the brushwork that he bought the 250 pieces, and they go on sale in Debenham's this week. The collection, all hand-made and hand-decorated pieces, includes wide-shouldered and urn-shaped vases, looking-glass frames, small jars and cigarette boxes. They will cost from 10s for the small pieces up to around £5 for the large ones, and they will very likely end up, after all these years, as 250 pretty unique Christmas presents

WHAT TO DO WITH A CHILD AT CHRISTMAS

You can lock them in a sound-proof room so you can't hear their gristled moans-cum-queries of "What can I do now?" Or, better still, you can suggest they take advantage of the fact that they live in a fascinating capital where everything is happening and encourage them to enjoy some of the places to see and things to do that are at their disposal during this holiday season

In the following list of suggestions we have left out the obvious places to visit like the Zoo and the British Museum. But from this random selection there should be a variety of ideas to pick from that should appeal to your particular offspring's interests.

Steam Age is a fascinating new shop at 59 Cadogan St, SW 3, which will interest youngsters (boys in particular). Sell working models of early locomotives, traction engines, early aircraft, ships steam engines and all sorts of models of strange mechanical mechanisms. Every model is in perfect working order and directors Mr Jonathan Minns and Mr Ivan R Scott are happy to welcome browsers and for the shop to be treated as a sort of 'museum'

Instruction in Road Safety can take up an enjoyable couple of hours if you visit ROSPA House, 17 Knightsbridge, SW 1. There anyone young (or not so young) can have a tour around looking at various models, trying out bicycles and being told whether or not they are riding them correctly; pushing buttons, seeing films, doing quizzes etc. If a party of around ten wish to go its best to telephone first so that you can arrange to have a special instructor to take you around. If on your own you can usually tag on to another party with an instructor. Open 10 a.m. to 7.30 p.m. weekdays, Saturdays 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Closed from 23-28 December. Will interest children from around 8 years upwards but under 16-year olds should be accompanied by an adult. Admission 1s for adults, 6d for children. Telephone: BEL 5236

Budding Tycoons from age of nine years upwards would enjoy a visit to The Stock Exchange, Throgmorton St, EC 2. Guides in the glassed-in visitors gallery overlooking the floor will explain all the hustle and bustle that is going on below and patiently answer all queries. Telephone LON 2355 Ext 110 to arrange visit and see explanatory film show.

Sorting Office, Mount Pleasant Interesting to watch the thousands of letters and parcels being sorted, also can see the underground post office railway. Tours last about two hours, children under fourteen not admitted. Closed for visits during Christmas rush until 7 January. Book by telephone or write to Controller, Room 3, Mount Pleasant Post Office, EC 1. (TER 4272 Ext 118).

Special Children's Theatre. The Unicorn Theatre Club is designed for children aged from 5 to thirteen. These holidays they are presenting a special Christmas show at the New Arts Theatre Club of The Wappy Waterbus, specially written for the company by Marged Smith. Performances are from Monday 20 December to 12 January at 2.15 p.m. (excluding Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and Sundays). Open to members of the Unicorn Theatre Club and members of New Arts Theatre, but for membership details apply to Unicorn Theatre for Children, 2 Warwick Close, W 8

Inland, Continental and International Trunk Telephone Exchange: Fascinating visit for children over 14 years of age who can see how subscriber trunk dialling system works and listen to the gabble of operators as they connect calls to four corners of the world. Guide takes parties round and explains all. Tour lasts about two hours. Monday to Friday 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 6 p.m. (No visitors from 23-28 December). Arrangements should be made through Telephone Manager, Long Distance Area, Faraday Building, Queen Victoria St EC 4 (CIT 4174).

Newspaper Offices. Most big newspapers have facilities for tours round their works and offices where you can see tomorrow's edition coming hot off the press. Telephone or write to the 'Visits' department of whichever paper you would like to see. Tours are generally in the evening for daily or Sunday papers, and in the afternoons for evening papers. Children should be over 14 years for most of these tours.

Royal Mews, Buckingham Palace Rd, SW 1. Can see Royal coaches and horses used for ceremonial occasions - including State Coach used for Coronations, the Glass State Coach used for Royal Weddings, and the Irish State Coach used for State Opening of Parliament. Horses include famous Windsor Greys. Open to public Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Admission 2s 6d, adults, 1s children.

Holiday Show. (Camping and Outdoor Life) at the Empire Hall, Olympia, from 29 December to 8 January. Main attractions will be the camping village, golfing and archery range, angling pool (casting competition). From 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Admission prices 3s adults, 2s children.

Pottery Classes are held at the Chelsea Pottery, 13 Radnor Walk, SW 3, where they welcome children from around four years upwards to come and mess around with clay, and older children to come and learn the craft properly. DO YOUR SHOPPING FROM YOUR ARMCHAIR

You don't have to hustle your way round the crowded stores to buy your Christmas presents. Here are some ideas for Christmas gifts that can be shopped for in the comfort of your armchair, with just a telephone and a cheque book on hand can be obtained through any branch of the British School of Motoring. Sample fees: course of 12 lessons would cost £14 7s 6d; course of 18 costs £21 7s 6d; course of 24 costs £28 7s 6d. Or if he or she fancies him/herself as a crack driver, you can flatter them by paying for subscription to the Institute of Advanced Motorists. (Empire House, Chiswick High Rd, W4 CHI 4403). £3 13s 6d will cover cost of advanced test and first annual subscription to the institute. If the recipient fails the test, he still has something of a gift left (apart from shaken confidence) as the institute will refund the membership fee (one guinea)

Vouchers for driving lessons

Classical music fans can be similarly catered for by a subscription token to a gramophone library. The Long Playing Record Library Ltd, 33 Catherine St, WC2 (TEM 1179) have over 2,000 LPs. in their collection. A year's subscription of 5 guineas would enable recipient to borrow one LP at a time (8 guineas for two records, 10 guineas for three). (Or you can take out a subscription for records by post: prices 10 guineas for three records, 12 guineas for four, 15 guineas for five through their head office at Squires Gate Station Approach, Blackpool). The voucher can be exchanged for records

Turkish Bath

... you can give them tickets for a few sessions. For women at the Dorchester, a course of seven costs £6 (£1 per session). For men at the Savoy Turkish Baths, 91 Jermyn St, SW1 (WHI 9552) a course of six costs £2 12s 6d (10s 6d per session). Or you could go one step further and give gift vouchers for Sauna Baths at Finland House, 56 Haymarket, SW1 (TRA 2601). The sauna bath alone costs 17s 6d per session (five sessions for £4 1s 6d); or sauna with massage thrown in costs £1 12s 6d per session (five sessions for £7 7s 6d)

Friends with blank walls and a taste for modern paintings might appreciate it if you took out a subscription on their behalf for hiring modern paintings. The Artists International Association, 15 Lisle St, WC2 (GER 4846) have a scheme for hiring out paintings by member artists (full range from water colours to pop-art). Cost is £2 registration fee, then £1 hiring fee per calendar month. Recipients can keep the painting for as long as you have paid for... or change it each month as long as subscription lasts of flowers to be delivered at her door each week can be arranged by taking out a 10s 6d subscription to the Four Seasons Flower Club, 11 New Quebec St, W1 (AMB 6611). Tell them what price bouquet you want delivered (minimum price 5s per week), and for how many weeks you would like them to be sent (minimum period four weeks). Sample gift: 12 weekly deliveries of flowers to the value of 5s a bunch, plus membership fee, would cost £3 12s 6d. The club will deliver free within a three-mile radius of the West End; they guarantee the flowers, grown in their own nurseries, to be in prime condition (refund or replacement is offered should any recipient have cause for complaint). The Four Seasons Flower Club also claim that they give around 50 per cent more flowers to every bunch than you'd get normally for parents who find it difficult to get out (no excuse for not accepting your party invitation) can be arranged through Babyminders, 88 George St, W1 (WEL 3515). The vouchers are made out for however many hours you have paid for. Rates are 5s an hour for evening baby-sitting, 5s 6d for daytime sessions

Give them a night out at the Talk of the Town who issue gift vouchers. A voucher for £5 15s will give two people a three-course dinner (plus dancing and cabaret of course), or if you are feeling really rich and generous, a voucher for £9 3s will also pay for cocktails before dinner, wine with, coffee and gratuities. (Talk of the Town, Hippodrome Corner, WC2 REG 5051)

Husbands, boyfriends, with difficult hair can be forced to have a proper haircut if you give them vouchers to go to Stone and Caine, 2 Park Close, SW1 (KEN 3759). Vouchers are priced 3 guineas (worth one visit a month for three months), 6 guineas (one visit a month for six months) and 12 guineas (one visit a month for a year.) Recipients can feel secure in the fact that famous people from all over the world speed to this elegant Knightsbridge salon as soon as they touch down in London

Beauty Gift Vouchers

can be obtained from most West End hairdressers and beauty salons. Vidal Sassoon, 171 New Bond St, W1 (MAY 9665) will give vouchers from £2 16s 6d which will cover cost of restyle, shampoo and set (or 4 guineas if you want their top hairdressers Mr Roger or Mr Joshua)

Michael Cornel, Conduit St, W1 (MAY 4606) will give vouchers for three months (12 guineas), six months (24 guineas) or one year (48 guineas) contract which means that the recipient can go in as often as she likes (every day if she wants) during the time specified to have a shampoo or set or just a comb-out.

Sylvia Taylor Beauty Salon, 110 Baker St, W1 (WEL 0643) have vouchers for courses of facials (with muscle toning, neck and face massage, eyebrow reshaping etc.) or for steam baths and body massages - courses of six cost 10 guineas; or 2 guineas per session

Helena Rubinstein, 3 Grafton St, W1 (GRO 9050) do gift vouchers that will pay for covering up and/or correcting a multitude of sins! If she's your best friend and won't be insulted, you could give her a course of slimming treatments... their Volcanotherm with Reducaid or Faradism could be acceptable (spot reducing, youthifying etc.). Course of six treatments cost £18 7s 6d

You can send

Bottle of Champagne to your friends anywhere in the British Isles through newscheme called Intercham (works like Interflora). All you do is to go to nearest off-licence which belongs to the scheme (they will display notice to this effect), pay standard charge of 9s 11d per bottle you want sent, and your gift will be delivered via nearest member off-licence to recipient's home. There are 1,200 off-licences already belonging to scheme (400 in London including all branches of Coopers Wine Merchants and 'inch's). Or you can 'phone Intercham (LUD 7617) to find your nearest off-licence would be pleased with a year's subscription to Harrods Library. A year's subscription for one volume-per-month borrowing costs £8s (£5 5s for six months), or for two volumes £14 14s (£8 18s 6d for six months). These rates include free delivery up to twice weekly at the subscriber's home and books for return can be handed to the carrier when he calls to deliver. All new books are available in the library on the day of publication

Hungry friends

can be treated to a Souper Intime (intimate supper) at Prunier's, 72 St James' St, SW1 (HYD 1373). Cost is £6 15s for two and Prunier's will send your guests an elegant, embossed card informing them that they are invited to dine at your expense. You will have paid for their pre-dinner cocktails, a three-course dinner, coffee, a bottle of wine (Muscadet) and the gratuities with new babies might like a token voucher to a nappy laundering service. Sun-White Nappy Service, 3 Hythe Rd, NW10 (LAD 6456) will send a gift card advising the recipient that Mother and Baby are welcome to Nappyland. Tokens are made out for any sums from £1 upwards. Sample gifts: 4 weeks' service, collection and delivery three times a week would cost £3 7s 6d; 8 weeks costs £5 17s. Or you can send a 'Complete scheme voucher' which means you will accept all accounts for the service for as long as needed

Top-knots, hair-piece, wigs or toupees

Richard Conway's Wiggy, 16 Knightsbridge Green, SW1 (KEN 3780) will make out tokens for whatever amount you want to spend. Tokens can also be exchanged for hair-styling, shampoo and sets etc. in their hairdressing salon at Raphael St, SW7 (KNI 6303). Top knots in 100 per cent pure hair start at £6 15s. Or you can give a token for a fringe or real hair which would cost about £2 15s

Domestic help

Vouchers can be arranged through Domestic Services Ltd, 261a Finchley Rd, NW3 (HAM 7501). They will send a letter to the recipient giving the name of the donor (or excluding it if you want to act as an anonymous fairy-godmother) telling them however many hours of free help you have entitled them to.

Interior decor

Friends moving into a new home or those who are thinking of redecorating/refurnishing might welcome this idea from Interiors of Hampstead. For 10 guineas they will send the recipient a token that entitles them to call on their interior design consultant who will work out a complete room scheme for them. Of course, the designer will consult first as to choice of style required and how much money is available. 67 Heath St, Hampstead, NW3 (HAM 7666)

And of Course...

A year's subscription to London Life magazine! For friends who think themselves in touch with what's happening around them... and for those who would like to be in touch... and those who need putting in touch! Send cheque for £8 5s to Subscription Department, London Life Magazine, 258 Gray's Inn Rd, London WC1

*When you see
like this*

on Saturday

In her first television play Miss Britt Eklund, as you can see left, wears red trousers and a blue shirt, which go well with her blonde hair and its yellow ribbon. But viewers will see her only in monochrome, which seems a pity; only when the Government gives the go-ahead for colour television will they get the full visual impact. In the play "A Cold Peace", she plays the Swedish mistress of a Fleet Street journalist who has turned successful thriller writer, abandoned his wife and children and gone to live in the south of France. This part is played by Ian Hendry in a black T-shirt, blue jeans and grey temples

THE BATTLE TO BRING COLOUR TO YOUR SCREEN

by Laurence Marks

When Britt Eklund makes her television debut in Robert Muller's play A Cold Peace on Saturday, 18 December, she will appear, of course, in black and white. London Life's cover this week shows a scene from the play as it would be seen on colour television.

Colour has been available in the United States for more than a decade. In Britain, it has been delayed by a long-running battle in the industry over which colour system should be adopted: the American NTSC, the French SECAM or the West German PAL. The Postmaster-General's Television Advisory Committee, which represents the two television networks, the manufacturing industry and the various Government departments concerned, has at last agreed to support PAL.

The next move is up to the Government. There is said to have been strong disagreement in the Cabinet over the desirability of spending millions of pounds on colour television while the country is still in economic difficulties. Mr George Brown gave a pretty clear hint in the Commons a few weeks ago that he was against it. Miss Jennie Lee is believed to want to reserve the fourth channel for her beloved University of the Air.

The influence of Lord Goodman is another factor. He acts as legal adviser to many of the commercial programme companies which are unenthusiastic about colour. He is also Mr Wilson's unofficial adviser on television matters—he was the celebrated "Mr X" in the 1964 television strike in which Mr Wilson, then Leader of the Opposition, intervened. Lord Goodman is thought to be anything but keen on colour television.

Part of the disagreement over the various colour systems has been concerned with "compatibility"—that is, the ability of the monochrome receiver to pick up the colour signal with minimum loss of clarity. NTSC is marginally better than PAL in this respect, but the difference is only noticeable to technicians watching on perfectly tuned pilot sets.

Mr Tony Stanley, one of the BBC engineers who have been working on colour TV development in Britain, says: "If you are sitting close enough to the set to see the lines, then you might see a very, very fine pattern of dots on those areas of the screen which would be most highly coloured if the signal were in colour. On the average home receiver, viewed by a non-engineering viewer, there is no significant difference between NTSC and PAL."

In spite of mixed reports from the United States, British technicians are confident that the quality of the colour will be very high.

"Colour in the States is variable," Mr Stanley says. "It is certainly not very good on out-of-town stations with perhaps one camera, run by one man and a boy. They're simply not equipped to set it up properly. But on the big stations it is excellent."

"With the cameras which were in use until last year, there was a limited contrast range. Dark colours didn't come out at all well. But our equipment will be new. The latest camera will give a much bigger contrast range, and there will be no spurious signals."

Colour television sets will not be more difficult to tune. If PAL is introduced, there will probably be only one additional knob on the set—to control what the experts call "saturation." If you turn it down, the colour fades into white. If you turn it up, it floods the screen with colour. The viewer operates it by using the human face as the norm. If that looks all right, then the colour of the rest of the picture should be right.

Not all television lends itself to colour, of course. Even in the United States, where colour television is now in an advanced stage, at least 10 per cent of transmissions on colour channels are still put out in monochrome. Often, the percentage is higher.

Light entertainment is at the top of most producers' lists of shows which will benefit most by being televised in colour. Ballet comes next. It has never really succeeded in black and white. Cookery is another subject which needs colour—as the Sunday colour supplements have discovered. So, of course, is painting.

Drama is likely to present producers with the most difficult problems. One of the snares is the temptation to flood the screen with vivid colour.

"Some designers say: 'Oh, colour! Let's put a lot of it in,'" says Mr Barry Learoyd of the BBC. "What they should say is: 'Oh, colour. Let's take some out.' The trick is to try to make everything monochrome except what you want to stand out. This business of flooding the set with colour is a terrible mistake. The idea of using colour to reflect the mood of a scene hasn't begun to be explored yet, even in the cinema."

The official BBC estimate is that television costs will be about doubled by the introduction of colour. At present, television costs the BBC about £5,000 an hour. Colour transmissions will cost around £10,000 an hour. But some individual technicians and producers believe that costs may be much lower, offering estimates of between 25 per cent and 50 per cent over the cost of monochrome productions.

The most important new factor in colour television, from the producer's point of view, is simply

COUNTING THE COST

Even if the Prime Minister gave the go-ahead for colour tomorrow, it would take between 18 months and two years to set up the service. January 1968 is the earliest date at which the ordinary viewer will be able to switch on colour television. How will it affect him? Will it be worth the money?

Colour television sets will cost between £150 and £200, perhaps more. The rental services will probably charge around £1 10s a week. Monochrome sets will still be able to receive the colour transmissions in black and white.

time. Lighting has to be more carefully worked out. Costumes and sets have to be matched more carefully. Last-minute changes require more careful thought.

So does make-up. Some skin tones create problems for cameramen. Mr Learoyd says that some red-headed people have skin with a blue-ish hue which becomes exaggerated on television.

Film inserts are another problem. Most television plays are recorded on videotape from a single continuous performance. Pre-filmed sequences are added where the continuity makes this necessary. The trouble is that Miss Britt Eklund's blonde hair or her bright blue sweater may not remain constant in colour in the two different processes. Making sure that the colour in the studio matches the colour in the filmed sequences also takes time.

Cutting from one camera to another is yet another problem. Quick cuts from, say, a man standing against a bright red background to a woman standing against a vivid yellow background may dazzle and confuse the viewer. So the pace of cutting has to be gentler.

This is a worse difficulty in television than in the cinema. Colour television, perhaps because the light appears to come through the tube instead of being reflected on to a screen, has a luminous quality which cinematic colour colour-processes lack. It is this luminosity which make colour television so visually exciting. But it also creates difficulties for the technicians.

"Colour," says Mr Learoyd, "is intensified by being projected through the tube. You have to tone everything down because of this. A picture which has almost no colour in it is much more exciting than one which has a lot of colour."

Estimates of the capital cost of setting up colour television vary wildly. The BBC's Television Centre already has studios with electrical circuits equipped for colour. And BBC-2's VHF 625-line transmitters are capable of transmitting colour. The immediate cost of cameras and other equipment would, according to one unofficial estimate, be around £750,000.

To pay for this and the additional running costs, even a £6 licence may not be enough.

On the other side, the ITA would finance a new channel for commercial television from loans repayable by higher charges to the programme companies.

Few of the companies are enthusiastic about colour. Mr Lew Grade of ATV and Mr Howard Thomas of ABC have both said they are strongly in favour of it. ATV's Elstree studios and ABC's Teddington studios are both equipped for colour. And both organizations are now filming series in colour for sale to the North American market.

Mr Robert Norris, director in charge of ABC's television film interests, says that with programme costs rising, it is necessary to try and recover them by selling to the international market. "We're making colour productions for the foreign market without any idea of how they transmit. We need experience of colour television at home."

But Mr Sydney Bernstein of Granada has come out firmly against colour. So has Lord Thomson of Scottish Television. Mr John McMillan of Rediffusion has said nothing that suggests he is wildly enthusiastic.

The general feeling in the industry seems to be that, if the BBC is given a colour channel, then ITV should also be given one.

How soon we shall be able to see the delectable Miss Eklund in colour only Mr Wilson knows.

He lived to save his hands

Among the many ravages war brought to Europe was the destruction of the great music-making centres of Vienna, Berlin and Prague. The musicians were scattered or killed.

But there were dedicated men who lived for music and who possessed the will to survive through the most terrible days. One is in London now. This is his story...

"In those days I had two concerns only – to preserve my life and save my hands." The comment comes from Mikulas Grosz, the Czech-born violinist who is in London for a recital at Wigmore Hall this week.

It refers to those black war-time years he spent in a concentration camp when for three years he did not see a violin – and the only music he heard was the music he played in his mind.

As a Jew, Professor Grosz was one of the first to suffer when the Nazis invaded Czechoslovakia in 1939. He had just finished seven years at Prague Conservatory of Music, graduating with four diplomas, and was beginning to make a name as a concert performer.

The Nazis stopped it all. He was forbidden to teach music or to perform in public and subjected to the usual indignities of a curfew and the yellow star.

In 1942 they seized his home, his musical instruments, his books

– everything he possessed, and sent him to Theresienstadt concentration camp in north Czechoslovakia, close to the German border.

"My immediate concern was to stay alive" he recalls. "This was a transit camp from where people were sent to Poland. I had to avoid this at all costs. It meant death."

So he persuaded the camp authorities that, as a man with sensitive hands, he could be usefully employed in the camp factory where mica was cut up for use later as aircraft parts.

"Some of the work was rough, cutting up big blocks of mica. I knew this would ruin my hands, so I had to get on to the finer work, slicing the thin sheets of mica. And miraculously this I managed to do."

By working hard – "sometimes I cut up nine ounces in a day, which is a lot when you remember that the sheets were wafer thin" – he managed to avoid deportation to Poland and spent all his captive years at Theresienstadt.

But preserving his precious hands was not easy. "It was very cold there, and of course we had no hot water. Occasionally I could collect a few sticks for a fire and heat a little water, but invariably I had to wash in cold water. It was icy cold when it came out of the tap and I would sometimes let it stand for an hour in the basin to lose its chill before I dared wash my hands."

When released in 1945 Professor Grosz's first thought was for his music. He borrowed a violin from a friend and spent a month practising scales to restore flexibility to his fingers before even trying to play a piece of music. He recalls the moment when he first held a violin in his hands again. "It was like the long-expected realization of a dream" he says.

It was nine months before he felt ready again to perform in public. Then he was back on his old form, and was soon given a French Government scholarship to the Ecole Normale de Musique in Paris, where he studied for three years under Cortot.

But more trouble was ahead. When the Communists seized power in Czechoslovakia Professor Grosz refused to declare his allegiance to the new government. Once again his home and possessions in Prague were confiscated and he found himself stateless.

He stayed on in Paris till 1952, but then went to live in the United States, and in 1958 became an American citizen. He still lives in New York but with his wife Anna travels widely.

The Wigmore Hall programme includes works by Bach, Beethoven, Bruch and Eccles. They give the clue to his tastes.

"I do not admire modern music too much" he says. "My taste is for the romantic, the rococo and the classic. Modern music does not speak to my heart."

'Er, all right, LBJ. Just on the brief-case. "

From Cusenier...

With love

The only way to improve Ambassadeur is to change the label. Possibly. Cusenier cannot improve the drink further. It's near perfection. The aperitif from Cusenier. Ambassadeur. You can buy it here, now. Get a bottle. Open it up. Pour some into a glass. Then taste it. That's all we're saying. You've just got to taste it. You can label the bottle how you choose. But you can't label the drink. Ambassadeur's unique—unique unique.

Theatre

Michael Denison and Margaret Lockwood in An Ideal Husband

The revival of Oscar Wilde's An Ideal Husband at the Strand Theatre may begin a tradition. Peter Bridge, the impresario behind it, confidently expects this to happen.

A gruelling tour of provincial towns, from Aberdeen to Birmingham, preceded the London opening. This was not the usual "provincial try-out," but deliberate policy - to mount a show as much with the provinces in mind as with the West End. Nor was it that other bane of the touring circuits - the starless attempt to fling a little half-hearted culture at the north. The cast is led by Michael Denison, Dulcie Gray, Ursula Jeans, Roger Livesey, Margaret Lockwood and Richard Todd. Wits have already dubbed the show Bridge's Follies of 1947.

But, no matter what London's reaction is, that the experiment is no folly, financially or artistically, has already been proved. "Not including the expenses of London presentation - advertising, front of house pictures and so on - the production cost £6,000 to mount," Peter Bridge tells me, adding joyfully: "It paid for itself in five weeks." Money was put up by Howard & Wyndham Ltd. ("The chairman, Peter Donald, is most enthusiastic about the scheme"), by Albert Finney, Brian Rix and Bridge himself. Profits are being pooled for future productions on a similar scale.

The idea of mounting starry revivals of classics has been hovering around for a couple of years now. At one stage it looked as though the straight West End commercial play was being crushed out of existence by the massive work of the Royal Shakespeare Company and the National Theatre on one hand, and musicals on the other. It was obvious that this middlestream of the theatre could be revived by glittering productions with big names at the helm. But the problems are immense. The major one is finance: close second is the question of contracts. Most of the leading names on the stage find themselves contracted for films or television series and are unable to commit themselves to a long run.

Peter O'Toole found himself in this situation, but discovered after filming Lawrence of Arabia that he had four months free. He approached Peter Bridge for suggestions, and quickly they conceived a super production of Hamlet to run at the Phoenix Theatre with Harry Andrews and Coral Browne alongside O'Toole and directed by Laurence Olivier. This plan was halted by the installation of the National Theatre at the Old Vic and O'Toole went into their Hamlet. Bearing Coral Browne in mind, Peter Bridge then dreamed up a revival of Hay Fever with Nigel Patrick.

This again fell through, but the idea was afloat. A number of actors including Nigel Patrick, Michael Denison and Dulcie Gray then suggested Bridge might manage and present all-star productions or rare plays based on a provincial tour followed by a limited season in London. It would help the fading touring business and bring the public back to the theatre. The first result of this was Shaw's Too True to be Good which began at the Edinburgh Festival and is now still running at the Garrick Theatre. Sticking to his limited seasons, Peter Bridge is bringing this play off after Christmas. He needn't: it's a popular success. "But I don't want people to get tired of it," he says.

The next move was an approach made by Michael Denison and Dulcie Gray who offered to play Sir Robert and Lady Chiltern in An Ideal Husband if a suitable cast could be found. With surprising ease six major names were found eager to participate. Margaret Lockwood nearly didn't accept. She had just completed an exhausting television series, but the idea of doing a costume role appealed: "I'd only done one before on the stage, in Pygmalion in 1951," and it gave her a chance to break new ground dramatically. For Richard Todd it marks his first return to the stage after 17 years in films. "I've always wanted to get back on the stage," he says. "And I've been asked many times, but all contracts are predicated on long runs and my film commitments never allowed that."

Another problem was that of finance. Obviously no management could afford to pay a cast such as this their top fees. The arrangement is that each actor receives a basic £80 a week, taking a share of any profits made over the break figure (this is the amount of money that must be taken at the theatre each day to cover that day's costs). Richard Todd was non-committal about these salaries: "I don't know what the others are getting, but obviously there are permutations".

Peter Bridge plans to make the Strand Theatre the permanent home of these productions. "There are lots of plays I want to do - Galsworthy, Pinero, Ibsen, Emlyn Williams, Ustinov. We toyed with the idea of running three or four in repertory, but the stars' contracts made that impossible." A major extension is an exchange scheme with America: to send a typical production to the States, receiving in exchange something American.

EVERYONE—IT'S THE PLACE

There's a dinner and dance in the 17th Century Tithe Barn every Saturday night. Two bands keep the party going from 8.00 p.m. to 1.00 a.m. and such stars as Lance Percival, Dick Emery and John Pertwee appear in the Cabaret. Only 40 minutes from town—and the price is 2 gns including the four-course dinner.

If you want to make a weekend of it you can arrive Saturday afternoon, go to the dinner dance in the evening, stay the night, enjoy a blissful breakfast in bed on Sunday morning and lunch at the hotel—all for 5 gns.

Or take advantage of our voucher scheme which enables you to lunch at any Trust House Hotel on your way home. Telephone: Dorking 4561 to make your reservation.

ANITA HARRIS CHOOSES HER FAVOURITE LPs

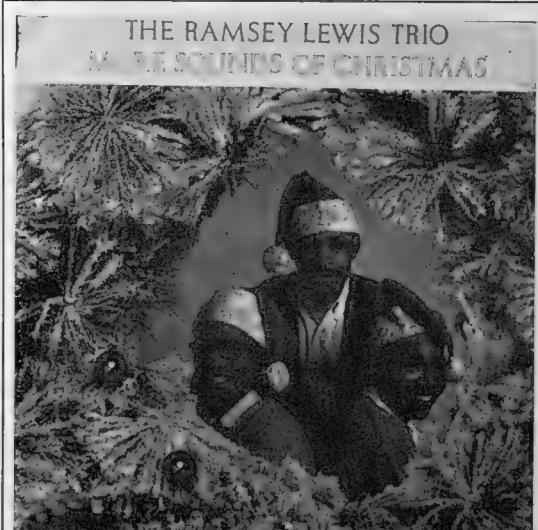

Sounds Orchestral Meets James Bond. Piccadilly NPL 38016. Click clack, tckick chok, NnC! WaAroom Vaaaaa Yegglebleek! Clear your throat, say the above loud and clear and that will give you some idea of the strange sounds issuing from this marvellous LP. Weird and wonderful arrangements by Johnny Pearson, John Schroeder and Denis Farnon. Pete McGurk

(who also plays with the "Pete! Wassat Dud?" "Funnee!" "Funeee!" Dudders Mooretrio) is featured heavily throughout with splendid effect, and five stars to balance engineer Ray Prickett (also to be heard on much of Tony Hatch's sounds). Grand Hairy musculature of Sean the Brown stares steely blue-eyed from the cover. My LP of the month

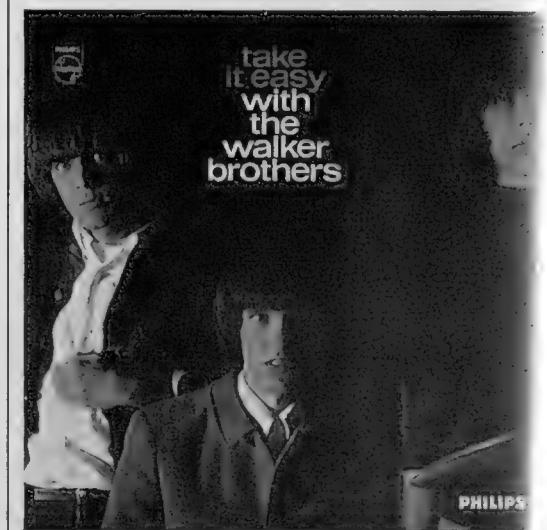

The Ramsey Lewis Trio: More Sounds of Christmas. Chess CRL 4504. Oh, No! not more sounds of Christmas! But I was so wrong. This is probably the most original, listenable set of Christmas arrangements I ever clapped ears on. Even all-time Ghastlies like Rudolf The Red Nosed Reindeer sound, and I'm not joking, really great. Whenever a record starts off with bass only, dat's mah kind of music, and this is all ideal listening material for that bit of the day just after the Christmas pud has gone down and you're in a relaxing mood. Switch on the gram, settle awhile and burp along with Ramsey Lewis. Tracks you will just not believe could ever sound like this include White Christmas, Jingle Bells and We Three Kings

Walker Brothers: Take It Easy With The Walker Brothers. Philips BL 7691. Scott Walker has a glorious voice and a great "feel for a lyric", both of which can be heard in a wide variety of moods on Take It Easy. I thought Make It Easy On Yourself one of the best records issued this year. Material is always a singer's major problem, and up against their big hit the other numbers on this LP are a trifle disappointing. Nevertheless, as they say on Juke Box Jury, I shall rush out and buy it because by any standards this is good singing and it makes a nice start to the shelf labelled "Walker Bros" in my flat. It should be pretty full by December 1966

The Swingle Singers: Getting Romantic. Philips BL 7679. From a singer's point of view these sort of vocal arrangements are great fun to work out, provided, of course, you don't confuse your boo-oo-bee-yabbee-bee's with your Shoo-vee-oo-vee-ahum's. Beethoven, Chopin, Schumann and other all-time jazz greats are done to tongue-twisting perfection under the direction of Wa Swingle. Mind you, one track is very much like the next, and the whole LP is very much like the other Swingle things you've ever heard, maybe it's a pity that there are no lyrics to listen to for relief. Now there's a thought—Le Mar de Limoges by Moussorgsky with lyrics by Mick Jagger!

All your life you'll remember the Bahamas

When the winter weather is at its worst, escape to the happiest climate in the world... fly away to Nassau and the Resort Islands of the Bahamas, where every month's July. See your Travel Agent now

IN LONDON IT'S WINTER.

But step on a BOAC Super VC10 any day and just eleven hours away it's still July—in Nassau. (Yes, 70° to 80° twelve months out of twelve). Wake to the heavy scent of jasmine. Breakfast on canteloupe, pineapple and ripe papaya. Take a Surrey and explore historic forts. Photograph tame flamingoes marching in formation in Ardastra Gardens. Want a souvenir? Buy a conch shell from a native sloop moored in the waterfront bazaar; or shop in the world-famous Straw Market for a raffia hat to protect you from the sun.

Choose a first-class hotel in Nassau itself (so many to choose from) or get away from it all on one of the irresistible Resort Islands. Stay at a Country Club, rent a self-contained cottage on an endless Bahamian beach. Wherever you go, the enthusiasm and warm hospitality of the Bahamians will immediately put you at your ease. You'll meet wonderful people, make wonderful friends.

FINEST FISHING IN THE WORLD

By the sea. Swim. Or relax, blissfully, on pink and white powdered sands. You'll get the sun tan you've dreamed about. Action-packed fishing? The world's finest. Big game. Marlin, tarpon, wahoo and the elusive, but prized, bonefish. Every fisherman's a lucky fisherman in the Bahamas. Play golf. Tennis. Go motor-racing—Nassau Speed Weeks are held every winter. Sail, ski. Go island-hopping: Eleuthera, Abaco, Exuma. Call on the Obeah man (witch-doctor) of Cat Island—and mind what you say! Skin-dive for lost Spanish gold off Crooked Island, Mayaguana and Caicos, where, did you know it, the Santa Cruz went down with a cargo of bullion in 1694. Play for high stakes in the fabulous Monte Carlo Room on Grand Bahama. A Bahamas Airways ticket will take you anywhere you want to go.

LAZY DAYS AND LIVELY NIGHTS

Evening. Eat al fresco under a Tropic of Cancer sky. Watch a floor show that features fire dancers, a steel band, (with a beat you can't resist), or an aqua show. Nassau's night-spots are alive, exhilarating—you won't get home till the small hours. Columbus discovered the Bahamas in 1492. This is your year. Discuss the winter holiday of a lifetime with your Travel Agent. He'll tell you how to get there, by air, or cruise there and fly back. If you would like to study details first at home fill in the coupon below. All your life you'll remember the Bahamas.

9 out of 10 top chefs use gas. Why?

Because Gas is easier to use and control. Gas is flexible and completely reliable. Top chefs, men who know their oignons, are artists and professionals. Whatever their speciality, gas is the fuel they use to achieve it. Because, for them, a flame they can control precisely is the perfect form of heat.

Nine out of ten may be a little on the conservative side. A recent check through Egon Ronay's Guide revealed that in all London's finest restaurants the cooking is by High Speed Gas.

Not only these virtuoso soloists, but the ever-growing band of aspiring home cooks find that High Speed Gas is the essential instrument for their art.

1. Mr. G. Bazzani, LONDON HILTON; 2. Mr. S. Millo, THE CARLTON TOWER; 3. Mr. H. Cavallo, HYDE PARK HOTEL; 4. Mr. L. Borra, QUAGLINO'S; 5. Mr. A. Ciorra, CAPRICE; 6. Mr. L. Virot, THE MAY FAIR HOTEL; 7. Mr. A. Meunier, LE COQ D'OR; 8. Mr. A. Agosti, NO. 10 CLUB, THE INSTITUTE OF DIRECTORS; 9. Mr. E. Kaufeler, THE DORCHESTER.

Only gas instantly gives the right heat for all phases of a dish's creation.

Only gas enables you to change from simmer to boil at the turn of a tap.

And to the obedient precision of gas modern designers have added the latest refinements. Automatic ignition, thermostatic hotplate control, rotating spits and oven timers—you can see them all at your nearest gas showroom. You can see, too, how right these top chefs are when they insist on gas for their kitchens.

Olympic Casino, 79 Queensway,

FRANKIE VAUGHAN (above), Talk of the Town, Hippodrome Corner, WC2 (REG 5051). Graduate from ordinary pop singing to the level of the all-round entertainer, made his West End cabaret debut here three years ago, liked by everyone, both colleagues and audiences, songs range from the smoothy top-hat-and-tails routine to an unsuitable but infectious belt. His work for youth clubs has gained him an international reputation and each year he gives the proceeds of one of his hit records to them

LIBBY MORRIS (left) Pigalle, 198 Piccadilly, W1 (REG 6423). One of those performers who has a hard core of devotees but remains just a funny face to the world at large. Her act is a balanced combination of the subtle and the crude, this last exemplified in broad gestures, facial distortion and noisy outbursts. But she can sing and her version of "Tea for Two" with beady insets, knocking the basic sentiments, brings joy and makes one incapable of listening to this song sung straight. Libby Morris was born in Winnipeg, is married to disc jockey and folk expert Murray Kash, lives in Hampshead with their small daughter. She has just completed an engagement at Mr Kelly's in Chicago and has been in the States and Canada since August. She tops the bill in "Piccadilly Night Out" until New Year's Eve. Catch the first show for the slaughter of "Tea for Two," the second for the total annihilation of "I feel pretty." Her first LP "Ad-Libby" is out soon. The floor-show still includes Josephine Blake and the Mac 4

Restaurants

Selective restaurant guide especially compiled by Neil Rhind, Editorial Manager of the Good Food Club. The Club's Good Food Guide (published by Consumers' Association and Cassell) has 1,600 entries covering the whole country. In this weekly section London Life will list and describe most of the reputable London restaurants in the course of the year. The name of the proprietor, where given, follows immediately after the telephone number. C.S. = Closed Sundays

W 1

ALPINO RESTAURANT, 42 Marylebone High St, W1 (WEL 4640). E Bosoni. Dinner 6-11.30. This cellar, underneath a coffee bar, is the original Alpino restaurant (there are branches in New Oxford St and Lower Grosvenor Pl), and, like its two offspring, serves good, reasonably cheap Italian food. Minestrone (2s), pizza (5s to 7s 3d), pasta (ravioli 4s 3d, lasagne 5s 3d) are good value; the veal and chicken dishes (up to about 10s including vegetables) worth investigating. A noisy and bustling place in the evening, with rather loud piped music.

BERTORELLI'S, 19 Charlotte St, W1 (MUS 4174). Mr Bertorelli. Dinner 6-10. C.S. This is the parent of the London Bertorelli restaurants. During the early years of this century it fed one of Britain's most distinguished gastronomes on minestrone, spaghetti and bread for about 6d. Alas, you won't get as much for 6d at Bertorelli's now. But 15s will give you a more than satisfying meal; the pastas, the veal and the calf's head vinaigrette are all good value. Service is sometimes slow. Wines by the carafe; by the bottle rather expensive.

CASA PEPE, 52 Dean St, W1 (GER 3916). Señor Pepe. Dinner 6-11.30. One of the few authentic, entirely Spanish restaurants in London. The welcome is friendly and there is Spanish dancing and guitar music in the evenings. Besides the long à la carte menu there are 16 Iberian specialities: gazpacho (3s 6d), calamares (inkfish, in their own ink, 9s), arroz à la Cubana (9s), and the pollo en pepitoria (12s 6d) for example. Licensed: carafes of Rioja 17s 6d, 1 carafe 9s 6d.

KEBAB AND HOMOUS HOUSE, 95 Charlotte St, W1 (MUS 3144). George Demetriou. Meals 10 a.m.-11.30 p.m. Now that this restaurant was recently signalled in this journal as one of Jean Shrimpton's favourites you should book your table early to beat the crowds falling over themselves to watch her eat kebab. When she's not there, go and try the homous, kebab, afelia or mousaka; a 3-course meal with Greek bread should cost no more than 15s. Greek wines; ouzo, and retzina by the glass 3s 6d; Greek sweets; Greek records.

PASTICCERIA AMALFI, 31 Old Compton St, W1 (GER 7384). Mancini Carconi. Dinner 6-midnight. A small, busy, cheerful and cheap Italian cafe where the lasagne (4s 6d), cannelloni gratinati à l'Amalfitana (4s 6d) and the tagliatelle (4s) are as good as anywhere in London and much cheaper. There are standard Italian main dishes from about 5s 6d to 10s 6d. The pastries, and the ice cream naturally, are very good. Wines by the glass 2s 6d.

PETITE MONTMARTRE, 15 Marylebone La, W1 (WEL 5002). René Bassett. Dinner 6.30-11.15. The Petite Montmartre tries a bit too hard to create a genuine French atmosphere, and unnecessarily, because the food is good and an advertisement in itself. The pâté de foie maison (7s 6d), artichauts St Malo (8s 6d), casoulet Toulousaine (12s 6d), noisettes d'agneau Susanne (14s 6d) and filets de sole Bréval (in wine, mushrooms, tomatoes and shallots, 15s 6d) are just a few things on a distinctive menu. Licensed: carafes about 16s; wine by the glass 4s 6d. Gourmet

SCOTT'S, 18-20 Coventry St, W1 (GER 7175). Manager: Mr E W Jordan. Dinner 6-11. Some people think Scott's is an anachronism with its gilt, mirrors and coathooks. Whatever anachronisms there may be they aren't the prices on the menu and wine list. The fish dishes are best (though the meats should not be ignored); lobster bisque (7s 6d), sole à la Scotts (17s 6d) and lobster Thermidor (30s). Lime sorbet (3s 6d) and the crepe Suzette (9s 6d) are good for afterwards. Wines from 20s

SHIRREFF'S RESTAURANT & WINE PARLOUR, 15 Great Castle St, Oxford Cir, W1 (LAN 2125 & 1507). Lunch 12.15-2.45; dinner 5.30-8.30 (Sat lunch only 12-2). C.S. You will get a more than reliable meal at the wine parlour of dishes like green pea soup (2s), paprika chicken and rice (8s 6d) and caramel cream. But the wine list is outstanding and costs little more than shop prices. Sherries from 1s 9d a glass, 15s named wines by the glass 1s 6d to 4s. The choice of Burgundies, clarets and hocks should please the most fastidious and cultivated of oenophiles.

SPAGHETTI HOUSE, 15 Goodge St, W1 (LAN 4578). Dinner 5.30-11.30. C.S. This 4-storey Italian restaurant is from the same stable as the Pizza House and the Zia Teresa mentioned in earlier lists. The value is remarkably good and the standard consistently high. Its lower floors are slightly cheaper and serve the predictable range of pasta, pizza, and the like; upstairs there are more classical things and unusual regional dishes like the escalope cooked with wine, sultanas, almonds and orange. Main dishes about 6s to 9s 6d. Licensed: carafes of Chianti 12s 6d.

THE WHITE TOWER, 1 Percy St, W1 (MUS 8141). J. Stais. Dinner 6.45-11. C.S. The White Tower has long been one of London's most distinguished restaurants. Its menu is mostly Greek, and it is this type of food you must eat here. Taramasalata, avgolemono, stuffed vine leaves (dolmades) for the hors d'oeuvre; for a main course moussaka (21 6d but enormous), pilaff des fruits de mer (24s), or shashlik at the same price. The atmosphere is most agreeable and customers are never hurried, whatever the time of day. Large, well-chosen wine list; Greek house wine 2ls; carafes 22s 6d.

WIVES OANISID RESTAURANT, 87 Wigmore St, W1 (WEL 1969). Dinner 5.30 p.m.-1 a.m. Scandinavian food, in this country, usually means a collection of open sandwiches masquerading under the title "smørrebrød", the rest of the menu looking as dull as any other "Continental" restaurant. The Wives isn't like that. As well as having a proper smørrebrød it also lists 11 authentic Danish specialities, of which the skilppadde (turtle meat and veal in sherry with eggs and asparagus for 7s 6d) is a good example. And quite rightly they have aquavit, Swedish punch and six Danish liqueurs on the wine list. Wise to book for dinner

W 3

GOLDSMITH'S ARMS, 130 East Acton Lane, W3 (SHE 1762). Dinner 6.30-10. This large Victorian pub is a very useful place in the wilderness of Acton. The cuisine is British and the cold table (which is the only sort of food available on a Sunday, by the way) very good indeed. Crab mayonnaise (9s 6d), salmon (12s 6d), beef, chicken & pork (9s 6d); there is a roast on a trolley from which you can have a second helping if you wish (12s 6d). Dinner is mostly predictable grills. Licensed: most wines under 20s

W 4

NOUFARO RESTAURANT, 187 Chiswick High Rd, W4 (CTUR 9870). Mr Lymbouris. Dinner 6-11. C.S. The Noufaro specializes in mid-Oriental cuisine; as the proprietor is a Greek-Cypriot it is not very surprising that his national dishes can be found on the menu. Stuffed aubergines (9s 6d), stuffed vineleaves (10s 6d), afelia (pork in wine, 8s 6d), and for sweet, galabourek (1s 6d). The waiters are in national costume; after 10 guitarists sing Greek songs. Licensed: Greek and Cyprus wines from 12s or so, by the glass 3s to 8s (Ch. d'Yquem); Bass on draught

W 6

LIGHT OF INDIA, 284 King St, W6 (RIV 2579). B Mukerjee. Dinner 6-midnight. A useful place for Hammersmith residents, who have precious few places worth visiting in their area. It is a clean and tidy restaurant with good service and well presented food. Prawn patia (6s 6d), mutton dhansak (8s), chicken vindaloo (6s 6d) are full of flavour; Bangalore phal dishes (mutton 6s, chicken 7s) strictly for seasoned curry fans. Give them notice and they will do their special chicken dish Murgh Mussalam (£3 10s for 4 persons). Licensed: lager 2s 6d

W 8

LA TOQUE BLANCHE, 21 Abingdon Rd, W8 (WES 5832). G Lourilleron. Dinner 7-10.45. A small, charming and often crowded restaurant with a highly skilled chef/proprietor who is a dab hand at soupe aux poissons, crêpe de fruits de mer (6s 6d), civet de lièvre (12s), langoustines à ma façon (18s), and ballottine de volaille Bressane (12s 6d). The cheeses are exceptional. The waiting is expert and supervised by la patronne. On the wine list is a special connoisseurs' section: about 30 bottles, costing over £2, but very strong on the better Burgundies

W 11

ASIA GRILL, 26 Pembridge Rd, W11 (PAR 5868). Mr Inder Jit. Dinner 6-11.45. Set in a dismal area this Oriental eating house has made a name for itself because the quality of the meat in its curries is good, and because they maintain a consistently reasonable standard. The biriani bringal gosht, chicken Danshak, paraka and poppadums are worth trying and reasonably priced

SW 1

POULE AU POT, 231 Ebury St, SW1 (SLO 7763). David Hall & Charles Brodgie. Dinners only, 6.30-11.30. Sound French bourgeois cooking, but whether you will be able to see what you are eating is a different matter for the room is kept in perpetual gloom. The coeurs d'artichauts (3s 6d), quiche Lorraine (4s 9d), are good starters; the canard à l'orange (18s), lapin aux deux moutardes (11s 6d), and the daube en gelée (9s) equally good main dishes. Reasonably priced wines; in carafe 6s 6d, or 12s, by the glass 3s

STONE'S CHOP HOUSE, Panton St, SW1 (WIII 0037). Dinner 6-12. C.S. This is from the same stable as Simpson's-in-the-Strand and is similarly a traditional English restaurant, though it has less atmosphere because the building was put up only in 1963. Roasts (beef 14s 6d, mutton 12s 6d) from the trolley, steak and kidney pudding (10s 6d) and various grills (12s 6d-16s), can provide a not too expensive lunch. Wine list better than Simpson's; carafes from 15s, by the glass 3s to 8s (Ch. d'Yquem); Bass on draught

L'AIGLON, 44 Old Church St, SW3 (FLA 8650). John Glen & David Enders. Dinner 6.30-11.30 p.m. (Sun 6.30-11). This is a quiet friendly place run by two actors, which must make it the archetypal Chelsea restaurant. The food is vaguely French and very good things to eat here are the potage l'Aiglon (2s), devilled kidneys (9s 6d), ratatouille, and endive Mornay (8s 6d). The wine list is well-chosen and cheap; even the Margaux '59 is only 16s 6d; wines by the glass 3s

ANDREA'S, 8-9 Blacklands Tee, SW3 (KNI 2919). A Antonio. Dinner 6.30-11.15. C.S. A quiet place, comfortable and relaxing. Andrea's doesn't attempt any curiosities in its cooking but sticks sensibly to the dishes it can do well. The entrecôte Marseillaise and the chicken à la Kiev (both at 14s 6d) are consistently good, the veal dishes (Chasseur and Milanaise 15s 6d and 13s 6d) and the pastas are likely to please. The wines are interesting but dear; carafes for 14s, 7s 6d the half; wine by the glass 3s 6d

CASSE-CROUTE, 1 Cale St, SW3 (FLA 6174 & 4711). House of Corrett Ltd. Dinner only 7.15-11.30. This is a crowded little French restaurant near the Chelsea Classic cinema. The cooking is French bourgeois and the menu very varied: pâté de foie volaille (4s 6d), artichoke salad (4s 6d), tête de veau vinaigrette (9s 6d) and the rognons de veau sauté aux champignons (10s 6d) are sound eating. Even the coffee is good. Licensed: nine sorts of wine in carafes from 16s 6d

KNIGHTSBRIDGE 8444, 86 Brompton Rd, SW3 (KNI 8444). E Franks. Dinner 6.11-30 p.m. If you are a do-it-yourself devotee then this restaurant opposite Harrods is just for you. For after your dinner you will be encouraged to wear Mexican hats and shake maracas in time to Spanish guitarists. The food is strictly professional: pâté or avocado pear (4s), steak Knightsbridge 8444 (12s 6d) and chicken Creole (9s 6d). The wine list is stuck on a bottle; Beaujolais 18s, 4 bottles 3s

LUBA'S BISTRO, 6 Yeoman's Row, SW3 (KEN 2950). Mme Luba. Dinner 6.30-midnight. This little restaurant looks like a bistro but the flavour of its food is definitely Russian. Its prices are low. The bortsch (2s 6d), mint-flavoured beef pancakes (3s), stuffed green peppers (8s 6d), beef Stroganoff (9s) and pojarsky (8s 6d), are all very good value. They take no bookings and you might have to queue for a while. No licence, so take your own wine; there is no corkage

MARYNAKA, 232 Brompton Rd, SW3 (KEN 6753). Mr Stadnikiewicz. Dinner 6-11. The cooking here is Continental, but the proprietor is Polish and his national cuisine is reflected in the dishes. Start with bortsch (4s 6d hot, 5s 6d cold) then go on to the scampi in dill sauce (14s), grilled chicken Marynka (14s) or veal Marynka with mushrooms, peppers, cheese and anchovies for the same price. The place is small and the service friendly. Wines dearish; some by the glass 3s 6d

SW 5

STAR OF INDIA, 154 Old Brompton Rd, SW3 (FTE 2901). W Sugar. Dinner 6-12 (Sunday 7-11.30). Another small, crowded and spotlessly clean place offering high standard food, and swift and competent service. Ceylon chicken (7s 6d), mutton korma (5s 6d), prawn patia (7s), Persian patia (8s 6d and 9s 6d) and mutton Madras (quite strong, 5s 6d) all well prepared and satisfying. No half-portions here so don't order too much or you may become over-replete. Licensed: iced lager

SW 7

CHANTERELLE, 119 Old Brompton Rd, SW7 (GEN 0292). Walter Baxter. Dinner 6.45-11.15. Closed Sunday lunch. The food here is as the decor by Terence Conran unusual—the combination has made this a successful and popular restaurant. Devilled prawns (5s 6d), vichyssoise (4s 6d), huntsman's beef (served with mushrooms and burgundy 12s 6d), roast piglet with cherries (15s 6d) should make a change from the eternal steak and chop. Tropical fruit salad (3s 6d) or the lemon sorbet (3s) for sweet. Licensed: wine in carafes 14s 6d, by the glass 4s 9d

SILVER SPUR, 38 The Cloe Pl, SW7 (KEN 7717). Capt I Pindelski. Dinner 6-11.30. A tiny Polish restaurant which some people think is the best of its kind in London. The bortsch, chłodnik (soup with prawns) and the beef Stroganoff are very good; the chicken Kiev and the veal dish called Bristol are also worth trying. Allow about 30s a head for a full lunch, especially if it includes the Polish cream and sultana pancakes. Licensed: flasks of wine, and bottles of lager

HUNGRY HORSE, 196 Fulham Rd, SW10 (FLA 7757). Bill Staughton. Dinner only, 6.30-midnight. Another example of the back-to-Mrs-Beeton school—basically British from starters to finish: gulls' eggs or leeks to begin with; brains in black butter, roast beef and Yorkshire, or salmon fishcakes as a main dish; baked treacle tart or Dorothy's Glorious Pudding to end. All very filling, and about 25s each without drinks. Licensed

WC 2

ASHOKA RESTAURANT, 22 Cranbourn St, WC 2 (TEM 5936). Mr Aziz. Meals served 12-12. The set lunch (7s 6d), or dinner (11s 6d) at the Ashoka is a good introduction to Punjabi cooking. There is a reasonable choice each day, and the range of pickles and chutneys included with the set meals should be indulged in with moderation—some of them are pretty fiery. The à la carte is short (a good sign in an Indian restaurant) and from it the speciality, Kashmiri chicken, is well worth 6s 6d. Licensed: bottled beers, iced lagers.

SAVOY HOTEL, Strand & Victoria Embankment, WC 2 (TEM 4343). Restaurant manager: Mr Antonio. Meals served until 3 a.m. in Restaurant; 1 a.m. in Grill Room. Internationally famous, with an international menu, impeccable service and international prices—no list of top London restaurants would be complete without the Savoy. There are tables d'hôte (about 30s for lunch, 50s for dinner) in the restaurant; the Grill Room is all à la carte with main dishes not often below, and quite often above, 20s. Wines happily less dear; carafes 15s; Ch. d'Yquem by the glass 8s.

PASTORIA HOTEL, St Martin's St, WC 2 (WIII 8641). Grand Metropolitan Hotels. Dinner 6.30-midnight. C.S. This hotel is tucked away behind the south side of Leicester Square and it is surprising that so few people have heard of it, for it is a very useful place for after-theatre dinners. Pâté maison (4s 6d), vichyssoise (3s 6d), cannelloni Sicilienne (8s 6d), rognons turbigo (13s 6d) and their very good steak Diane (14s 6d) are well worth trying. Licensed: wines not cheap, but some below £1.

NW 3

TURPIN'S, 118 Heath St, NW 3 (HAM 3791). Lunch Sunday only, 12-3. Dinner, Tue-Sat only, 6.30-11.30. This is a new English restaurant which is not only much more enterprising than most places but rigidly refuses to serve tinned or frozen vegetables—only fresh ones, in season, are offered. The chestnut or iced cream of cucumber soup (4s 6d & 3s 6d), the steak & kidney pudding or grilled trout (8s 6d) should be investigated. Unlicensed: wines fetched.

E 14

OLD FRIENDS, 70 West India Dock Rd, E 14 (EAS 4235). Mr Cheung. Meals from 11.30 a.m.-11.30 p.m. This was the first of the "Friends" restaurants, and this Mr Cheung is a cousin of the Mr Cheung who owns the other two, if you see what I mean. This is listed because the food here is more often than not in the same class as those. If, when you arrive, you find a hole in the road, or a block of council flats, read the entry for the Young Friends.

YOUNG FRIENDS, 11 Pennyfields, Poplar, E 14 (EAS 4276). Mr Chung. Meals from noon-midnight. This is the successor to Old Friends (q.v.) which is soon to be pulled down. Like the other "Friends" restaurants, it is one of the few truly authentic Chinese restaurants in the Western Hemisphere. A meal will cost you about 15s to 20s a head, and should be absolutely splendid.

IN 90 DAYS HATCHETT'S GOES INTERNATIONAL

"I read somewhere that the Coombes or Combes are dour, stubborn, big-headed people," says Anthony Vinnicombe, dour, stubborn and eternally 26-year-old head of Restaurant Associates, the company which has bought up Hatchett's in Piccadilly and hopes to convert it into one of London's star meeting places. The cost will be £100,000; the time—90 days, starting on February 1.

Vinnicombe has already made a success of the Wayang in the Earls Court Road and the Sands in Bond Street. The Wayang was "just a coffee-bar when I went in to help a friend, but I knew the coffee thing wouldn't last. We decided to make something of it." It has been awarded prizes for being the most beautiful restaurant of its type in the world.

He takes a good deal of interest in the decor. He once worked for a colour adviser in Sydney, Australia. He has replanned the interior of Hatchett's and supervises the architect (who also worked with him on the earlier two). But he takes a good deal of interest in everything. He worked as steward and cook on Swedish merchant ships, as a disc jockey, travelled the Seven Seas, and covered the wilder parts of Australia as a sheep drover.

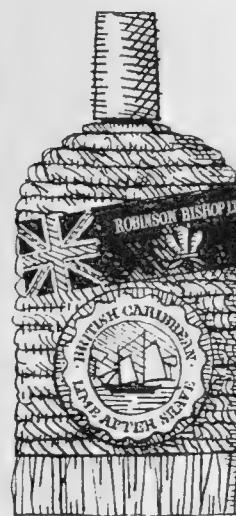

Not much of his life seems to have been a preparation for sophisticated West End catering, but he means to tear up the inside of Hatchett's in a way that would gladden the heart of the ordinary Aussie, used to taking the town apart on a Saturday night. Vinnicombe once walked naked through the township of Claredale in Queensland after walking for miles on flint roads, using his shorts as shoes when his plimsolls wore out.

Though it will no longer be the sort of place which boasts a Guards' Bar and clothes to match, Hatchett's will be a far cry from Claredale. Three bars, a restaurant on seven levels, a piano built into a bridge suspended in mid-air, a whole new "street" like a boulevard, open to the sky but protected by a "heat-wall" where you can pretend you're in Paris... Vinnicombe runs up and down stairs showing you where it'll all be.

"London's the centre of our world now. We've got to make it international. I've got a licence from 1720 which means you can drink at any time of the day. It's got to be like Paris if you want it, or like New York, Rome, Madrid if you want that. The big breakthrough's coming. It's happened in gambling. If anyone wants to come to London and gamble a million he can. It'll happen with the licensing laws. If you shout at the people to stagger working hours, you've got to let them stagger their leisure hours too. The town is opening in a wholesome sense. Come over here, I want to show you... I'm going to rip this wall out..."

Our bred-on-the-Wolds duckling speak for themselves

How can you get the flavour Nature intended from poultry that's indoor-reared? Cherry Valley ducklings are reared on the broad Lincolnshire Wolds; bred from over twenty generations of open-air stock; eating a correctly-balanced natural diet; selected and packed just when they are at their plumpest and most tender. Result? Duckling the way Nature intended it should be; deliciously tasty, with greater depth of breast meat, smaller bones, less fat. Enjoy poultry with flavour for a change; look for the Cherry Valley label at all good butchers, poulterers, stores and supermarkets. Write for free cooking booklet or name of nearest stockist to:

Marie Brizard Apry is today's cure for after-dinner angst* high-powered people say so). It goes down slow, sweet and smooth. That's what Apry does. What lingers is the rich, ripe taste of apricots; the deep glow of a beautifully blended liqueur. Soothing after-dinner balm. And Marie Brizard Apry is a therapeutic 54/-, too.

*Anxiety—caused by a subconscious awareness of a lack of Apry.
